

Protecting Our Happiness

Our happiness is protected when it is.....

derived from the ability to make wise choices.

taking a ride on the right train of thought.

ever present when we have an attitude of gratitude.

swallowing hurtful words so we don't have to eat them afterwards.

activated when our good intentions marry our actions.

no pouting, no shouting, no doubting....just re-routing.

having the courage to create our own reality.

our impeccability.

a constant thing when we are unattached to outcome.

feeling rich no matter our income.

held strong when we lead with our heart instead of our head.

feeling inspired by intelligent criticism.

the end result of our generosity.

corded to our mighty boldness.

secured when we feel free to be truthful under all circumstances.

when our motivation puts on work clothes.

knowing deeds not plaques are the true monuments for greatness.

loving what we do.

keeping to the path of the promise we promised ourselves.

standing up for what is right without worrying about being shot down.

Protecting Our Happiness

Our happiness is protected when it is.....

being able to have a belief without evidence.

staying optimistic in the midst of people who are pessimistic.

self-responsibility and self-accountability.

perseverance beyond endurance.

the result of our noble character.

putting our focus on being fundamentally good.

the ability to emulate our mentors.

having a great wall of protection from those who are jealous.

developing wise problem solving skills.

loving those who do not love themselves.

being glued to our integrity.

having grace instead of disgrace.

examining all our feelings, denying none.

the refusal of selfishness.

the mutual respect of differences.

the result of a clear conscience and guiltless goodness.

stabilized when we hold a certainty while in the midst of confusion.

witnessing the extra-ordinary hidden among the ordinary.

being committed to applying ourselves instead of relying on others.
